Give Forecast of Cooler Weather for Minnesota

SHOWERS TO MOVE ACROSS WHOLE STATE

RELIEF PROMISED, BUT OTHER STATES ARE STILL SUFFERING

MORE THAN 500 REPORTED DEAD IN UNITED STATES FROM THE HEAT

St. Paul, July 1.—(U.P.)—As the death toll from the high temperatures passed the 100 mark, the United States weather bureau today announced that the week-old heat wave would end tonight.

The 102 fatalities for the State of Minnesota were divided as follows: Proportions 83, drownings 15, automobile fatalities of those en route to resorts 3 and one suicide.

Although rain had not yet arrived in the Twin Cities this afternoon, the sky was cloudy and the sun was obscured frequently. Rain was reported from Brainerd and other central and northeastern Minnesota points.

Rain was reported over a strip extending south from eastern north Dakota to the Kansas-Nebraska boundary line. The heaviest downpour occurred at Edmonton, Alta., where 2.34 inches were recorded.

Temperatures had moderated today in southern Minnesota where the heat wave continued. St. Paul had 90 at noon a drop of six degrees from average marks at this time during the past week.

Cooler weather was reported from stations in northern Minnesota and the Dakotas. Duluth had 78 degrees, Moorhead, 72, Bismarck, N. D., 60, Williston, 52, Huron, S. D., 68, and Pierre 70.

Near freezing temperatures were reported from Yellowstone Park where a temperature of 36 degrees were recorded.

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—The record breaking June heat wave moved into July with the forecast of cooler weather for Minnesota.

While the rest of the country still suffered from the scorching temperatures today, the weather bureau said that showers in northeastern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota would move across the state of the ten thousand lakes bringing relief.

The death list continued to mount, however, as the rain had not yet reached central or southern sections of Minnesota. The list for Minnesota had already passed the 100 mark while scores of prostrations and drownings were reported from both Dakotas and Wisconsin.

For Minnesota, the latest figures showed 104 dead, 85 from heat prostrations, 15 drownings, 3 automobile fatalities from crowds going to resorts and one suicide.

More than 500 were reported dead in the United States from the heat, which was inflicting thousands of dollars of crop damage. In western North Dakota, it was doubtful if the grain could be saved even with immediate falling of showers.

Fears were expressed by health officials in various cities that unless the heat wave was dispelled before July 4, an alarming number of deaths would result over the week-end.

Rural sections as well as cities reported suffering. Farmers were overcome while working in the hot sun and a dozen deaths from prostrations were tabulated.

Oats and other grain crops damaged by heat and corn crops were in need of rain.

Water shortages and baked pastures forcing farmers to send cattle and other livestock prematurely to market, especially in western North Dakota. Hundreds of horses died after becoming overcome while pulling heavy harvesting machinery.

Contrasting the sultry winds and hot sunshine over the rest of the nation, frosty temperatures prevailed in the state of Washington and in other sections west of the Rockies. Relief in the mid-west and eastern sections of the country must come in the form of cool breezes from that region, it was said.

"Heat freaks" by the score were recounted as the mercury rose to as high as 100 degrees. Several broods of chickens were hatched by the sun after hens left their nests or died from the heat.

The following heat prostrations were reported since yesterday afternoon: From Minneapolis: Ole Doka, Mels Palmquist, Joseph Doreau, Fred Nygart, William Erickson, Mrs. May Hinge, Adolph Olson, Henry Rezir, Ole Hanson, Andrew Morstrom and Harry Strand.

COCKTAILS MIXED OF EMBALMING FLUID AT PRISON

Huntsville, Tex., July 1.—(U.P.)—Cocktails mixed of embalming fluid and drunk within prison walls, were blamed today for the death of one convict, the blinding of two others and the serious illness of a fourth, in the state penitentiary here.

The convict cocktail party was held Sunday afternoon behind the prison blacksmith shop.

Ernest ("Shorty") Hamilton, 23, of Mingus, died Monday in convulsions and Aubrey Charles, Nacoma, and William Duncan, McKinney, became blind.

Robert Stewart, Monroe, La., became seriously ill and, with Duncan and Charles, still was in the prison hospital today.

Warden W. W. Waid said he has established almost definitely that the men went on a spree with embalming fluid stolen from the penitentiary morgue.

The 102 fatalities for the State of Minnesota were divided as follows: Proportions 83, drownings 15, automobile fatalities of those en route to resorts 3 and one suicide.

Federal Farm Board Will Not Withdraw From Domestic or World Markets, It Is Stated

DOMESTIC SALES SET AT 5 MILLION BUSHELS A MONTH

THIS LIMIT SET FOR THE YEAR BEGINNING TODAY, ACCORDING TO BOARD

POLICY MODIFICATION FOLLOWS HOOVER'S REQUEST TO CLARIFY POSITION

By H. O. THOMPSON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 1.—The federal farm board, whose wheat policy has been assailed in many quarters, will not withdraw from domestic or world markets, but will limit its domestic sales of government-owned wheat to 5,000,000 bushels a month during the year beginning today.

This modification of policy, announced last night by the board, was a response to President Hoover's suggestion of last Saturday that the board clarify its position. It represented some deviations from the principles the board hitherto has followed. But he carried a refusal to accede to the wishes of the grain trade and others, including Vice-President Curtis, who wanted the board's surplus held completely off the market while the 1931 crop is being sold.

Chairman James Clifton Stone, who owns a big farm and a small racing stable down in Kentucky, said in explanation of the statement that the board had not yielded to political pressure from the White House or elsewhere. The statement was issued after numerous conferences and consultations, including a visit by Chairman Stone to the White House.

"The board is convinced," the statement said, "that this method will establish a free market, which any fixed price would interfere with, and will distinctly improve the situation by the knowledge that the present holdings will slowly be disposed of and thus systematically clearing up the position for the future."

Proposals that the board hold its wheat for a definite price would not be in the interest of the farmers, the board held.

"If a high price were fixed," it said, "then the stabilization holdings would never be disposed of and would continue to overhang the future of American agriculture."

The board renewed its oft-repeated plea for acreage reduction, saying that "without such reductions there is little hope of any long-term, continued profitable wheat production in the United States in competition with new wheat countries abroad."

The board reviewed its March 23 statement in which it said surplus stocks of government wheat, estimated now to be in excess of 200,000,000 bushels, "will be handled in such a way as to impose the minimum of burden upon domestic and world prices."

"A review of the domestic situation shows an increase in the surplus," the new statement continued. "The domestic overproduction of wheat, therefore, continues."

"The board wishes to urge that the only final solution of the wheat growers' difficulty is a sharp reduction in the forthcoming plantings. The situation today would have been clear and prices at much higher levels had the recommendation of a year ago been more generally followed."

The board continued in clarifying its policy:

"The grain stabilization corporation will limit its sales of wheat from July 1, 1931, to July 1, 1932, to a cumulative maximum of five million bushels per month. This is approximately seven per cent of the estimated bushelage of the 1931 crop. This limitation, however, shall not apply to sales to foreign governments or their agencies now being considered. Any sales for the purpose of clearing trade channels or for other efficient merchandising purposes will be promptly replaced by purchase of an equal quantity of wheat. Such transactions will not be considered as a part of the sales program."

5 PERSONS KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE LOSES ITS WING

Hamilton, Ont., July 1.—(U.P.)—Five persons were killed when an airplane lost a wing and crashed on the Hamilton airport here today.

The dead were: J. H. Maher, Montreal, owner of the plane; Capt. Bob Sterling, Montreal, pilot; Alfred Rogers, Hamilton, Ont.; Charles Daly, Toronto, and H. Raines, a Canadian press correspondent who came here to cover the start of the trans-Canada air pageant.

THE BAMBARGER AND WATKINS BABIES CASE IS FINALLY SETTLED

BABIES PASS THEIR FIRST BIRTHDAYS

GROWING MORE LIKE THEIR ACCEPTED FATHERS EVERY DAY

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—The famous mixed-up Bamberger and Watkins babies had passed their first birthdays today and it was agreed by the parents who traded them, are growing to look more like their respective accepted fathers every day.

The babies were born to Mrs. William Watkins and Mrs. Charles Bamberger one year ago yesterday in Englewood hospital. Belief that the children had somehow been exchanged was aroused several days after the mothers had returned to their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Bamberger discovered while bathing their baby that he bore on his back a strip of adhesive tape on which was written the name "Watkins."

The four parents became frantic. Experts were called in and argued over the case for days. Hundreds of mothers offered suggestions, many of them fantastic, as to how the babies could be identified.

After it apparently had been settled that the babies never had been exchanged at all, the parents quietly got together and traded children.

"I am positive that I now have the right baby," Mrs. Bamberger said today. "He looks more like his father each day."

"I don't doubt that they have the right babies now," said an official of Englewood hospital, "but I am positive that the children never were mixed up in the hospital."

Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, who have taken William, Jr., to the country on a vacation, also are convinced that the child they are bringing up is their own.

Convict Labor Charges Not Proven in Shipment of Pulpwood to U. S.

Washington, July 1.—(U.P.)—Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman announced today that charges convict labor had been used in production of a cargo of Soviet Russian pulpwood now held at New York had not been proved and that the cargo would be admitted to this country.

The pulpwood was imported by the Amtorg Trading company for the International Paper company.

The American Federation of Labor, the National Lumber Manufacturers' association and others opposed admission, alleging convict labor had produced the wood.

GOV. OLSON NAMES CONSERVATION COMMISSION

WILL CO-ORDINATE AND ADMINISTER STATE'S NATURAL RESOURCES

THOMAS DONLIN, ST. CLOUD, IS NAMED ON NEW PAROLE BOARD

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—Governor Floyd B. Olson today appointed his newly created conservation commission which will for the first time co-ordinate and administer all of the state's natural resources.

The governor also announced the reappointment of Charles M. Babcock as state highway commissioner.

The five members will take office immediately. One man was chosen from each of the Twin Cities and one each from Duluth, Virginia and Wabasha.

Those named to the conservation commission were William McEwen, Duluth, editor of the Duluth Labor Review; Richard Bailey, Virginia lumberman; Parker O. Anderson, St. Paul, forester; James T. Williams, Minneapolis, sportsman; John T. Foley, Wabasha, attorney and sportsman.

At the same time Governor Olson named Thomas Donlin, St. Cloud, to the new parole board.

The first meeting of the new conservation commission will be conducted next week, the governor announced.

McEwen is familiar with the mining, forest, game and water power resources of the northern section of the state both as a writer and as a sportsman, the governor said.

In naming Bailey, Olson said that he deemed it advisable to pick two men from the northern part of the state for the commission because of their familiarity with the region's resources. Bailey is a lumberman, thoroughly familiar with forest conditions in the north country, the governor said. Bailey was reported to advocate reforestation.

Anderson was a graduate from the Minnesota college of forestry and has been assistant state forester. He was endorsed by the American Legion and various conservation groups.

Williams has been active in importing game birds to Minnesota and has been a member of sportsmen's circles for years.

Foley is an attorney at Wabasha and former county attorney there. He has been endorsed by the first district American Legion and the Southern Minnesota Izaak Walton League.

The appointment of Donlin, a former service man and commander of the St. Cloud Legion post and now president of the Kiwanis club, to the new parole board completes that group's organization.

Previously the governor had named Rev. H. C. Swearingen, St. Paul, and Arthur Lindholm, Minneapolis.

Babcock was reappointed for a two-year term, ending rumors that he was to be replaced. Gov. Olson held up the appointment nearly a week from the end of Babcock's term, last Thursday, and is reported to have made considerable investigation into operation of the department by the commissioner.

WORLD FLIERS CONTINUE MAKING PHENOMENAL TIME

HAVE BEEN ON OR AHEAD OF SCHEDULE FROM THE TIME THEY LEFT NEW YORK

WILL REFUEL AT CLEVELAND; EXPECT TO MAKE NEW YORK BY DARK

Cleveland, O., July 1.—(U.P.)—The world fliers, Harold Gatty and Wiley Post, landed their monoplane Winnie Mae here at 4:13 EST. today. They intend to refuel and leave at once for New York, the end of their record-breaking flight.

Detroit, July 1.—(U.P.)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, back again above American soil, soared eastward this afternoon toward their home goal, New York, after flying around the world.

Starting from Edmonton, Alta., at 6:39 EDT. today, they sped their globe circling "Winnie Mae" above Manitoba, thence across the Michigan line bound for Cleveland, Tower, Minn., Ironwood, and Tustin, Mich., reported their passing.

They were making with unerring accuracy for the base from which they started last Tuesday on aviation's most epochal achievement.

Cadillac, Mich., July 1.—The round the world plane Winnie Mae, nearing the end of its globe circling flight, passed over Tustin, 12 miles southwest of here at 2:38 EST. this afternoon.

Residents of Tustin reported the plane was flying low enough for them to make its license numbers on the white wings as it roared southeastward toward Cleveland, its last scheduled fueling stop.

Arrival of the plane over Michigan was earlier than had been expected. Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, pilot and navigator of the record-breaking flight, apparently were giving the plane an almost open throttle in an effort to cut down their time into New York.

At the rate they are flying they should pass over Detroit around 4 o'clock and reach Cleveland before 5 o'clock.

Tustin, Mich., would be on a direct course to Cleveland from Edmonton, over the Great Lakes. It is north-northwest of Grand Rapids.

If the report of the plane's passing Tustin is correct, an earlier report that a plane had passed Tower, Minn., at 1:49 P. M. EST. was incorrect as to time, as the two towns are about 410 miles apart. Both Tower and Tustin are on the direct line from Edmonton to Cleveland.

Winnipeg, Man., July 1.—The world fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, were reported to have passed over McTavish, Man., 33 miles southwest of Winnipeg, at 9:30 A. M. CST. today.

The fliers were reported to have passed over Saskatoon, Sask., at 6:20 A. M. CST.

The reports indicated the fliers were making around 145 miles an hour on the last dash toward a new world record. Two routes from McTavish lay before Post and Gatty. They had the option of cutting across or skirting Lake Superior and then heading south or bearing south across Minnesota, north Wisconsin, across Lake Michigan and on to Cleveland.

Edmonton, Alta., July 1.—The monoplane Winnie Mae, homeward bound near the end of man's swiftest globe-circling journey, soared away at 3:39 A. M. (4:39 A. M. CST.) today on the final phase of its phenomenal world flight back to New York.

Wiley Post, pilot, and Harold Gatty, navigator, rested after a sound night's sleep, climbed into their speedy plane, waved goodbye to Edmonton and nosed the machine into the wind which blew out of a rainy gray dawn.

The fliers said they expected to make one stop for refueling at Cleveland, O., and hurry on to New York. They hoped to reach Roosevelt Field, N. Y., soon after dark this evening.

"We will make straight for Cleveland," Gatty said as he watched Post warming up the motor of the Winnie Mae. "On arrival there we will take on fuel and hop off immediately for New York. We expect to reach Roosevelt Field this evening after dark."

Post agreed with Gatty. He scanned the weather charts and said he would set a straight course for Cleveland. The weather had cleared considerably as dawn brightened. A 45-mile an hour tail-wind greeted them on their way across the North American continent toward the achievement of their daring goal.

The fliers were up at 2:30 A. M. (3:30 A. M. CST.) after eight hours' sleep. They ate a hearty breakfast and then inspected the plank. Mechanics had it wheeled out onto Portage Avenue, a broad pavement which gave them a 2-mile straight-away into the wind.

A steady rain during the night had made the airfield soggy and the runways were too water-logged for a safe start from their uneven, soft surfaces. The avenue was cleared and lined with hundreds of Edmonton citizens who cheered and waved and shouted enthusiastically in the rain as the big

CRUCIAL MOMENT IN THE FRANCO-AMERICAN PARLEY

FATE OF AMERICAN DEBT PROPOSALS HINGES ON LAST MINUTE NEGOTIATIONS

MELLON IS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE RECEIVED "FINAL INSTRUCTIONS"

By RALPH HEINZEN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 1.—An atmosphere of tense expectancy spread through official Paris today at the outset of what was regarded as a crucial moment in the Franco-American negotiations on President Hoover's war debts and reparations holiday scheme.

The fate of the American proposals, due to become effective today, hinged, at least in part, on the outcome of the conversations between Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and members of the government.

Mellon was understood to have received "final instructions" from Washington, which he will present to Premier Pierre Laval and other members of the cabinet participating in these negotiations.

Mellon and Walter E. Edge, United States ambassador, spent the morning studying President Hoover's instructions preparatory to resuming conversations with Premier Pierre Laval today.

The French were hopeful that the 24-hour "truce" had permitted Hoover to obtain Germany's agreement to continue the unconditional annuities payments with a possible compromise understanding that these payments, lent back to Germany, would be repaid in 10 years. Washington has insisted on 25 years.

The premier was heartened by the senate's vote of support yesterday, which binds the cabinet to these points in the renewed negotiations, all of which Hoover is said to oppose:

1. Insistence that Germany pay the full unconditional annuities during the proposed year's debts holiday.

2. Yugoslavia be entitled to borrow from these payments to the bank for international settlements at Basle, to avoid what the French fear may result in a currency collapse in that country.

3. France must be assured that she will not be obliged to mobilize her share of the Young plan guarantee in case another moratorium is called until Germany repays any possible borrowings from the Basle bank.

The French have given no signs of giving ground on their reservation to the Hoover plan which has caused delay in putting the year's moratorium into effect. The cabinet's attitude was approved in the senate, the upper chamber following the deputies, and there appeared little reason to believe the Laval ministry could alter its adamant demand that if the Hoover holiday is put into effect, Germany be informed to pay the unconditional annuities provided in the Young plan.

Washington's inclination to reject the French reservation was believed strengthened somewhat by Italy's action. The Fascist government informed her debtors that payments due today were suspended pending the outcome of the negotiations here.

Dispatches from London also were regarded as tending to strengthen the American government's position, reports from there relating that there was considerable speculation on whether the plan could not be carried out without the co-operation of France.

The French, however, had the support of Belgium, the Belgian acceptance of the Hoover plan, including similar reservations regarding Germany's payments for damage done during the world war, Belgium also demanded the "special treatment on reparations payments" to which the Brussels government insisted it was and had always been admittedly entitled.

Salonica, July 1.—(U.P.)—Jews deserted the city in droves today, stricken with fear that recurrent communal riots might result in further bloodshed.

The authorities considered ordering martial law.

The troops on patrol throughout the city were instructed to fire after three warnings in case of further trouble. Pierce hatred resulted in further demonstrations but no casualties since yesterday's fighting were reported.

The police fired into the air to disperse a group of 100 pro-Jewish communists holding a demonstration that threatened to become violent.

Ten deaths occurred in yesterday's fighting, and 50 persons were injured. The Jewish quarter was set afire, and upwards of 200 dwellings razed.

ers' difficulty is a sharp reduction in the forthcoming plantings. The situation today would have been clear and prices at much higher levels had the recommendation of a year ago been more generally followed."

The board continued in clarifying its policy:

"The grain stabilization corporation will limit its sales of wheat from July 1, 1931, to July 1, 1932, to a cumulative maximum of five million bushels per month. This is approximately seven per cent of the estimated bushelage of the 1931 crop. This limitation, however, shall not apply to sales to foreign governments or their agencies now being considered. Any sales for the purpose of clearing trade channels or for other efficient merchandising purposes will be promptly replaced by purchase of an equal quantity of wheat. Such transactions will not be considered as a part of the sales program.

FAMOUS MIXED-UP BABIES CASE IS FINALLY SETTLED

THE BAMBERGER AND WATKINS BABIES PASS THEIR FIRST BIRTHDAYS

GROWING MORE LIKE THEIR ACCEPTED FATHERS EVERY DAY

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—The famous mixed-up Bamberger and Watkins babies had passed their first birthdays today and, it was agreed by the parents who traded them, are growing to look more like their respective accepted fathers every day.

The babies were born to Mrs. William Watkins and Mrs. Charles Bamberger one year ago yesterday in Englewood hospital. Belief that the children had somehow been exchanged was aroused several days after the mothers had returned to their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Bamberger discovered while bathing their baby that he bore on his back a strip of adhesive tape on which was written the name "Watkins."

The four parents became frantic. Experts were called in and argued over the case for days. Hundreds of mothers offered suggestions, many of them fantastic, as to how the babies could be identified.

After it apparently had been settled that the babies never had been exchanged at all, the parents quietly got together and traded children.

"I am positive that I now have the right baby," Mrs. Bamberger said today. "He looks more like his father each day."

"I don't doubt that they have the right babies now," said an official of Englewood hospital, "but I am positive that the children never were mixed up in the hospital."

Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, who have taken William, Jr., to the country on a vacation, also are convinced that the child they are bringing up is their own.

Convict Labor Charges Not Proven in Shipment of Pulpwood to U. S.

Washington, July 1.—(U.P.)—Assistant Secretary of Treasury Lowman announced today that charges convict labor had been used in production of a cargo of Soviet Russian pulpwood now held at New York had not been proved and that the cargo would be admitted to this country.

The pulpwood was imported by the Amtorg Trading company for the International Paper company.

The American Federation of Labor, the National Lumber Manufacturers' association and others opposed admission, alleging convict labor had produced the wood.

GOV. OLSON NAMES CONSERVATION COMMISSION

THOMAS DONLIN, ST. CLOUD, IS NAMED ON NEW PAROLE BOARD

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—Governor Floyd B. Olson today appointed his newly created conservation commission which will for the first time co-ordinate and administer all of the state's natural resources.

The governor also announced the reappointment of Charles M. Babcock as state highway commissioner.

The five members will take office immediately. One man was chosen from each of the Twin Cities and one each from Duluth, Virginia and Wabasha.

Those named to the conservation commission were William McEwen, Duluth, editor of the Duluth Labor Review; Richard Bailey, Virginia lumberman; Parker O. Anderson, St. Paul, forester; James T. Williams, Minneapolis, sportsman; John T. Foley, Wabasha, attorney and sportsman.

At the same time Governor Olson named Thomas Donlin, St. Cloud, to the new parole board.

The first meeting of the new conservation commission will be conducted next week, the governor announced.

McEwen is familiar with the mining, forest, game and water power resources of the northern section of the state both as a writer and as a sportsman, the governor said.

In naming Bailey, Olson said that he deemed it advisable to pick two men from the northern part of the state for the commission because of their familiarity with the region's resources.

Bailey is a lumberman, thoroughly familiar with forest conditions in the north country, the governor said. Bailey was reported to advocate reforestation.

Anderson was a graduate from the Minnesota college of forestry and has been assistant state forester. He was endorsed by the American Legion and various conservation groups.

Williams has been active in importing game birds to Minnesota and has been a member of sportsmen's circles for years.

Foley is an attorney at Wabasha and former county attorney there. He has been endorsed by the first district American Legion and the Southern Minnesota Izaak Walton League.

The appointment of Donlin, a former service man and commander of the St. Cloud Legion post and now president of the Kiwanis club, to the new parole board completes that group's organization.

Previously the governor had named Rev. H. C. Swearigen, St. Paul, and Arthur Lindholm, Minneapolis.

Babcock was reappointed for a two-year term, ending rumors that he was to be replaced. Gov. Olson held up the appointment nearly a week from the end of Babcock's term, last Thursday, and is reported to have made a considerable investigation into operation of the department by the commissioner.

HAVE BEEN ON OR AHEAD OF SCHEDULE FROM TIME THEY LEFT NEW YORK

WILL REFUEL AT CLEVELAND; EXPECT TO MAKE NEW YORK BY DARK

Cleveland, O., July 1.—(U.P.)—The world fliers, Harold Gatty and Wiley Post, landed their monoplane Winnie Mae here at 4:13 EST. today. They intend to refuel and leave at once for New York, the end of their record-breaking flight.

Detroit, July 1.—(U.P.)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, back again above American soil, soared eastward this afternoon toward their home goal, New York, after flying around the world.

Starting from Edmonton, Alta., at 6:39 EDT. today, they sped their globe circling "Winnie Mae" above Manitoba, thence across the Michigan line bound for Cleveland. Tower, Minn., Ironwood, and Tustin, Mich., reported their passing.

They were making with unerring accuracy for the base from which they started last Tuesday on aviation's most epochal achievement.

Cadillac, Mich., July 1.—The round the world plane Winnie Mae, nearing the end of its globe circling flight, passed over Tustin, 12 miles southwest of here at 2:38 EST, this afternoon.

Residents of Tustin reported the plane was flying low enough for them to make its license numbers on the white wings as it roared southeastward toward Cleveland, its last scheduled fueling stop.

Arrival of the plane over Michigan was earlier than had been expected. Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, pilot and navigator of the record-breaking flight, apparently were giving the plane an almost open throttle in an effort to cut down their time into New York.

At the rate they are flying they should pass over Detroit around 4 o'clock and reach Cleveland before 5 o'clock.

Tustin, Mich., would be on a direct course to Cleveland from Edmonton, over the Great Lakes. It is north-northwest of Grand Rapids.

If the report of the plane's passing Tustin is correct, an earlier report that a plane had passed Tower, Minn., at 1:49 P. M. EST, was incorrect as to time, as the two towns are about 410 miles apart. Both Tower and Tustin are on the direct line from Edmonton to Cleveland.

Winnipeg, Man., July 1.—The world fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, were reported to have passed over McTavish, Man., 33 miles southwest of Winnipeg, at 9:30 A. M. CST. today.

The fliers were reported to have passed over Saskatoon, Sask., at 8:20 A. M. CST.

The reports indicated the fliers were making around 145 miles an hour on the last dash toward a new world record. Two routes from McTavish lay before them.

Post and Gatty. They had the option of cutting across or skirting Lake Superior and then heading south or bearing south across Minnesota, north Wisconsin, across Lake Michigan and on to Cleveland.

Edmonton, Alta., July 1.—The monoplane Winnie Mae, homeward bound near the end of man's swiftest globe-circling journey, soared away at 3:39 A. M. (4:39 A. M. CST.) today on the final phase of its phenomenal world flight back to New York.

Wiley Post, pilot, and Harold Gatty, navigator, rested after a sound night's sleep, climbed into their speedy plane, waved goodbye to Edmonton and nosed the machine into the wind which blew out of a rainy gray dawn.

The fliers said they expected to make one stop for refueling at Cleveland, O., and hurry on to New York. They hoped to reach Roosevelt Field, N. Y., soon after dark this evening.

"We will make straight for Cleveland," Gatty said as he watched Post warming up the motor of the Winnie Mae. "On arrival there we will take on fuel and hop off immediately for New York. We expect to reach Roosevelt Field this evening after dark."

Post agreed with Gatty. He scanned the weather charts and said he would set a straight course for Cleveland. The weather had cleared considerably as dawn brightened. A 45-mile an hour tail-wind speeded them on their way across the North American continent toward the achievement of their daring goal.

The fliers were up at 2:30 A. M. (3:30 A. M. CST.) after eight hours' sleep. They ate a hearty breakfast and then inspected the plank. Mechanics had it wheeled out onto Portage Avenue, a broad pavement which gave them a 2-mile straight-away into the wind.

A steady rain during the night had made the airfield soggy and the runways were too water-logged for a safe start from their unproven, soft surfaces. The avenue was cleared and lined with hundreds of Edmonton citizens who cheered and waved and shouted enthusiastically in the rain as the big

Old Mileage Book
Back After 37 Years
for 55 Cent Refund

St. Paul, July 1.—A mileage book, which was issued by the Northern Pacific 37 years ago, was presented to E. J. Johnson, auditor passenger receipts of that railway company, a few days ago for a 55-cent refund. The 1,000-mile ticket was issued to Frank Zak of St. Paul on January 19, 1894, at the time the railroad was in the hands of receivers, which was followed by its reorganization in 1896, according to Mr. Johnson. The book was sold for $25, which was at the rate of two and one-half cents a mile for 1,000 miles, and the tariff provided at that time that in event all of the mileage was not used, charge would be made for the mileage used at the basic rate of three cents a mile, refunding the difference, if any. On this basis, which is in excess of the amount paid for the book. The unused portion of the book was only 17 miles and the transportation value would have been only 55 cents, but there is no refund that can lawfully be made at this time.

Old Mileage Book Back After 37 Years for 55 Cent Refund

St. Paul, July 1.—A mileage book, which was issued by the Northern Pacific 37 years ago, was presented to E. J. Johnson, auditor passenger receipts of that railway company, a few days ago for a 55-cent refund. The 1,000-mile ticket was issued to Frank Zak of St. Paul on January 19, 1894, at the time the railroad was in the hands of receivers, which was followed by its reorganization in 1896, according to Mr. Johnson. The book was sold for $25, which was at the rate of two and one-half cents a mile for 1,000 miles, and the tariff provided at that time that in event all of the mileage was not used, charge would be made for the mileage used at the basic rate of three cents a mile, refunding the difference, if any. On this basis, the charge would, of course be $29.31, which is in excess of the amount paid for the book. The unused portion of the book was only 17 miles and the transportation value would have been only 55 cents, but there is no refund that can lawfully be made at this time.

white plane gathered headway and was off into the mists to the south-east.

"How did you sleep?" the fliers were asked as they inspected the Winnie Mae.

"Great," Post replied. "And we're feeling fine as fiddles," Gatty added.

The rain had stopped when the Winnie Mae began its run down Portage Avenue, but low clouds hung over the city. The big monoplane gained headway and was quickly into the air. It gained altitude slowly at first, then climbed into the sky, circled back and was off to the southeast.

The world fliers, heroes for a week's amazing work in this imagination-inspiring feat, hoped to make the 1,850 miles to New York in about 14 hours. They will have circled the earth in eight days and about 12 hours if they do—beating by far the record set by the German dirigible of 22 days in July, 1929.

From here they took a diagonal route across Alberta, probably flying over Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, and then across the border into their home country. The route then probably will lead across the very northern part of the plains states and along the Great Lakes, possibly over central Minnesota or the head of Lake Superior.

All the way around the earth to Edmonton they made phenomenal time, racing across land and sea with almost express-train precision. They were on or ahead of schedule from the time they left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., a week ago yesterday morning—and the precision of their performance has been one of the amazing phases of their record achievement.

Washington, July 1. — President Hoover will honor the around the world fliers, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, by inviting them to have lunch with him at the White House, it was announced today.

The invitation will be sent to the fliers as soon as they arrive in New York.

President Hoover has watched with keen interest the record breaking flight, reading of the fliers' exploits daily in the newspapers.

Hoping that Post and Gatty, world air girdlers, might have piloted their plane through the Brainerd lake region on the home stretch to New York, a number of people gathered this noon at the Rosko Airport.

The people further hoped that the fliers might bring their plane, the Winnie Mae, to earth for refueling and a short rest here after their flight from Edmonton.

3 PER CENT INTEREST ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS IN ST. PAUL BANKS

St. Paul, July 1.—(UP)—All St. Paul banks today inaugurated a three per cent interest rate on savings accounts and an increase in the amount charged for checking accounts.

The move, which was voted by a meeting of bankers last month, becomes effective today and results in rates paid by St. Paul banks being raised to the levels paid in other banks throughout the state.

Checking account charges will vary, it was said. Two banks will raise the minimum on which a charge of $1 is made from $100 to $200.

Kiel, Germany, July 1.—(UP)—A 19-year-old fascist student hurled a tear gas bomb into a meeting of democratic students today, injuring three slightly.

A trailer on a Minnesota Highway Department truck, broke away from the machine, careened at dangerous speed east on Front street, crashed into four automobiles and forced them up on the sidewalk at 3:30 p. m. today.

Pedestrians jumped out of the road of the cars as they leaped the curb.

Damage was done to the rear end of cars owned by Clyde Parker, Henry I. Cohen, Robert Nichol and another car believed to be a tourist's.

The trailer which is used to haul a small jackknife shovel broke loose after the truck turned on Front street from Fifth street.

"At a foreign wedding I attended," says a correspondent, "the bride was given a pomegranate to throw on the floor. What was the significance?" It is an eastern symbol. The number of seeds is held to indicate the size of the family to be established.

Hoping that Post and Gatty, world air fliers, might have piloted their plane through the Brainerd lake region on the home stretch to New York, a number of people gathered this noon at the Rosko Airport.

The people further hoped that the fliers might bring their plane, the Winnie Mae, to earth for refueling and a short rest here after their flight from Edmonton.

3 PER CENT INTEREST ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS IN ST. PAUL BANKS

St. Paul, July 1.—(UP)—All St. Paul banks today inaugurated a three per cent interest rate on savings accounts and an increase in the amount charged for checking accounts.

The move, which was voted by a meeting of bankers last month, becomes effective today and results in rates paid by St. Paul banks being raised to the levels paid in other banks throughout the state.

Checking account charges will vary, it was said. Two banks will raise the minimum on which a charge of $1 is made from $100 to $200.

Kiel, Germany, July 1.—(UP)—A 19-year-old fascist student hurled a tear gas bomb into a meeting of democratic students today, injuring three slightly. The bomb was thrown during a lecture by Prof. Walter Schuecking, Germany's representative on The Hague court.

ROWDIES STONE U. S. CONSULATE AT BERLIN

Berlin, July 1.—(UP)—A band of rowdies stoned the United States consulate at midnight last night, smashing a glass door and one window.

Four out of the gang of 20 were arrested. They denied they had participated in the attack. The others fled. Police said they thought the demonstration was staged by communists in protest against the impending execution of eight negroes in Alabama for an attack on a white girl. The consulate asked additional police protection.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 1, 1931

The Value of a Hobby

THERE is no saying how much we owe to the man with a hobby. Ben Franklin had one—and now most of the world's work is done by electricity. Carnegie had one—and libraries appeared in all but the smallest cities of America. Audubon had one—and we became cognizant of the bird-world about us. An old wanderer named "John" had one—and left behind him, all over the middle west, a trail of apple trees.

Fred Cowden, of Geneva, Ohio, 50 years ago traded some schoolboy-treasure for an old flint arrow-head, and acquired a lifetime hobby. In travels back and forth across the country he has gradually accumulated a remarkable collection of arrow-heads of every description and origin, spears, lances, implements and ornaments made by the original owners and occupants of the land. A part of this collection is on exhibition, free of charge to all who are interested, at the old court house this week.

Our own region is represented in this collection. Mr. Cowden has a farm in Center township, on which he resides through the summer, and he has found some splendid specimens here, also at old Mission. These are the delicate little "bird-points" for the most part. Let some of our modern hunters fashion himself so balanced and effective a weapon from a fragment of flint, and then go out and secure himself a nice fat duck or Canada goose with it. Before he has achieved success in the effort he may have formed a different estimate of the patience, skill and intelligence of the ancient Red Man than he has had, heretofore.

Mr. Cowden calls attention to the Cherokee "war-points" from his Arkansas collection. These were not tied to the shaft, and remained in the target when shot. Although quite ornamental in their place on the silken banners which Mr. Cowden has fashioned for his mountings, they have an ominous appearance when one imagines them well buried in human flesh.

That these ancient people did not spend all of their time in hunting birds or enemies is attested by a flat, gray "discaloid" from the Illinois river. Mr. Cowden explains that these were used in a gambling game known to many of the tribes of the middle west. Interesting, too, are the smooth, oval stones, pierced by the little stone drills one finds in the collection, which were used as a sort of button to hold the blanket together. There are a number of shell blades, cut, polished and pierced by hand, with only hand-made instruments of stone. The gift of such a necklace to the damsel of one's choice would be eloquent of true devotion, surely.

"Yell" county, Arkansas, and Trumbull county, Ohio, are the districts which seem to have yielded the greatest number of specimens to this collector. He tells of finding one fine specimen of skinning-knife on the street of his little Ohio town, that has known no Indians for a hundred years. One of the large maple trees that line the streets had died and workmen were digging out the stump. People had been passing that way all day, seeing no significance in the oval stone with one edge polished to a smooth bevel. So there it lay, in plain sight of the delighted collector. No doubt Crow Wing county farmers kick aside stones of as much value to collectors without realizing their significance.

Mr. Cowden brings this collection to us with no small outlay of trouble to himself, and Brainerd and the nearby communities should show appreciation of his kindness and generosity by visiting the museum in large numbers. It is open every afternoon this week, Saturday excepted, from 2 to 4:30 o'clock.

The Russian Worker

FREE labor may mean one thing in one country and something quite different in another, says Vincent Vocovich writing in Current History. When a worker labors under the influence of a peculiar social philosophy his position may appear to be one of compulsion and enslavement to the workers of another country, so that what seems to be free labor to the Soviet leaders and their sympathizers may be regarded as forced labor in America and other capitalistic countries.

The Communists well know that free and democratic elections would remove most, if not all, of them from office. Freedom to choose the place of work, employer, wages, hours and working conditions would mean that few workers would select Communists for their industrial administrators.

Measures of virtual enslavement alone make the Russians work under the existing conditions. They know they are forced to work and to raise their hands at the meetings, but there is no way out.

They protest against the tyranny by disregard of discipline, by drunkenness, and by absenting themselves from work. They cannot organize to overthrow the despots. Silence or punishment is the alternative. They prefer silence and the country progresses slowly.

The miseries and merciless exploitation of the down-trodden Russian workers are shadowed by fear and terror, while the desperate multitude is compelled to shout with grim smiles, "Long Live the Dictator."

A Good Memory

ACCORDING to Charles Harris, who gave a memory test at the Rotary club on Tuesday and at the Lions club the next evening, a good memory is something that can be acquired by exercising the mind just as one develops the muscles of the body in physical exercise.

Any person can train the mind so that he will be able to remember names, dates, figures, places and other necessary facts and things if properly instructed. The trouble with the business men and women today is that they depend on memoranda instead of using some of their neglected brain cells.

The lack of interest and the lack of concentration in not receiving correctly and properly first impressions makes it utterly impossible for the mind to register a permanent record.

Any graduate of Mr. Harris, who has followed instructions carefully, will then be immune to such things as forgetting to post his wife's letter, or forgetting to give the wife her regular allowance check and other things.

Death Takes No Holiday

DEATH takes no holiday. More people are killed in motor vehicle accidents on Sundays and holidays than on all other days.

Saturday and Sunday, July 4th and 5th, are holidays and motor travel will be very heavy. Extra caution should be exercised by every driver.

Will accidents cause sorrow and suffering to follow, or will every driver of a motor vehicle take time to play safe and make these days ones of welfare and happiness for all?

SAINTS HAVE NARROW HALF GAME LEAD

NOW LORING IT IN FIRST POSITION OVER LOUISVILLE COLONELS

MILWAUKEE, IN THIRD PLACE, RIGHT AT HEELS OF THE LEADERS

(By United Press)
The St. Paul Saints maintained a narrow half-game lead today over the Louisville Colonels, champions last year, in the American Association. Milwaukee, in third place, remained right at the heels of the leaders. St. Paul experienced no trouble in winning from Kansas City, 11-2. The southerners got to two opposing hurlers for a total of 12 hits but were unable to bunt the blows for additional scores.

Milwaukee made 21 hits to defeat the fourth-place Minneapolis team, 11 to 3. Americus Polli, an old veteran, held the losers to one run up to the ninth inning, when he eased up and allowed two scores to cross the plate. Toledo won from Indianapolis, 11-3. Games today: Kansas City at St. Paul. Milwaukee at Minneapolis. Louisville at Columbus. Indianapolis at Toledo.

Young and wealthy Dave Ordway's plane crashes in the Florida groves of Joan Marbury. Joan, assisted by her cousin, Sally, has difficulty in running the plantation due to financial straits. Damage to the property following Joan's repulsion of the advances of Mueller, neighboring planter, adds to the hardships. Dave is held up and robbed by Mueller when he refuses Mueller's exorbitant demands for damage to his trees when Dave's plane swooped to a landing. That night, Mueller sets fire to the plane. A fight ensues and Joan rescues Dave from Mueller. Later, Dave's former fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson, visit him. Instant antagonism is aroused between Barbara and Joan. Mueller calls and orders Dave and the boys out of the country. Gerry identifies Mueller as Snatch Cazzoni, a bootlegger. Barbara tries to make up with Dave. Sally resents being called a gold-digger by Barbara.

CHAPTER XVI.

SALLY turned away, staring

stony into the moonlight.

Her rebellious face was very beautiful as she stood there and

Dave was aware of a quickening of his pulses. Could it be possible, he wondered, that her intuition had pointed out the future correctly? No one knew better than he how one could drift along with the crowd, living from day to day and allowing the future to take care of itself. He knew, too, what magic there was in propinquity. To avoid

Barbara, it would be almost necessary to cut loose from all the friends with whom he had grown up and that would leave a gap in his life that would be difficult to fill.

"Listen, Sally," he said, "these few wonderful days with you and

Joan have meant much more to me than you can possibly imagine."

CHAPTER XVII.

She turned slowly to stare straight up into his eyes. There was in the nearness of her slender, vibrant body and of her full red lips. But as he looked down into the flawless oval of her face he seemed to see

Joan's lips, firm and resolute.

"Sally," he whispered shakily,

"we'd better go inside."

"Dave!" came Talbot's raucous voice. "You're holding up the procession."

Dave drew in his breath with a long sigh of relief. The spell was broken.

"Coming, Talbot," he called.

From the doorway came the wailing bleat of Gerry's mouth organ and the clear contralto of Joan's laughter. Sally had not moved. Dave placed his hand on her arm.

"We're going in now, Sally," he said firmly.

He could feel her arm tremble under the steady pressure of his fingers. Her two hands were clenched tightly on the porch rail

as if they anchored her there, preventing her from drifting into the backwash of eventless days and nights which she had known before

Dave had arrived and might know again after he had gone. She looked helplessly across the lawn toward the county road that led,

on the one hand, to what had led been Cathy; on the other, to the lively cities on the Coast where there was dancing and music and laughter. She could smell the jungle, lush and dank, pregnant with the odors of dead things that it had smothered in its implacable embrace. It was out there, waiting for her to turn her back. Then it would sweep across the grove and the road and smother her, too.

She could almost hear it breathe.

She swayed a little closer to Dave.

"I wish you weren't going,

Dave," she whispered softly.

He turned his eyes away from her by sheer force of will and deliberately attuned his ears and his mind to the quavering notes of Gerry's mouth organ. She was too beautiful, too fascinating, for him to dare look at her any longer

out here on the moon-drenched porch.

"We must go in," he repeated steadily. "They're waiting for me."

Deep Thoughts

"You go," she said in a muffled

voice. "I want to stay here."

He hesitated for the space of a dozen heart-beats. Then he forced himself to walk into the house.

Joan, Talbot and Gerry were still sitting about the candle-lit

table, the latter still blowing contentedly into his harmonica. Barbara, a fresh cigarette in her long holder, was standing at the dining-room window, staring out into the black and silver shadows of the orange groves.

Talbot's quick blue eyes flickered from Dave's face to the door-

The Value of a Hobby

THERE is no saying how much we owe to the man with a hobby. Ben Franklin had one—and now most of the world's work is done by electricity. Carnegie had one—and libraries appeared in all but the smallest cities of America. Audubon had one—and we became cognizant of the bird-world about us. An old wanderer named "John" had one—and left behind him, all over the middle west, a trail of apple trees.

Fred Cowden, of Geneva, Ohio, 50 years ago traded some schoolboy-treasure for an old flint arrow-head, and acquired a lifetime hobby. In travels back and forth across the country he has gradually accumulated a remarkable collection of arrow-heads of every description and origin, spears, lances, implements and ornaments made by the original owners and occupants of the land. A part of this collection is on exhibition, free of charge to all who are interested, at the old court house this week.

Our own region is represented in this collection. Mr. Cowden has a farm in Center township, on which he resides through the summer, and he has found some splendid specimens here, also at old Mission. These are the delicate little "bird-points" for the most part. Let some of our modern hunters fashion himself so balanced and effective a weapon from a fragment of flint, and then go out and secure himself a nice fat duck or Canada goose with it. Before he has achieved success in the effort he may have formed a different estimate of the patience, skill and intelligence of the ancient Red Man than he has had, heretofore.

Mr. Cowden calls attention to the Cherokee "war-points" from his Arkansas collection. These were not tied to the shaft, and remained in the target when shot. Although quite ornamental in their place on the silken banners which Mr. Cowden has fashioned for his mountings, they have an ominous appearance when one imagines them well buried in human flesh.

That these ancient people did not spend all of their time in hunting birds or enemies is attested by a flat, gray "discoid" from the Illinois river. Mr. Cowden explains that these were used in a gambling game known to many of the tribes of the middle west. Interesting, too, are the smooth, oval stones, pierced by the little stone drills one finds in the collection, which were used as a sort of button to hold the blanket together. There are a number of shell blades, cut, polished and pierced by hand, with only hand-made instruments of stone. The gift of such a necklace to the damsel of one's choice would be eloquent of true devotion, surely.

"Yell" county, Arkansas, and Trumbull county, Ohio, are the districts which seem to have yielded the greatest number of specimens to this collector. He tells of finding one fine specimen of skinning-knife on the street of his little Ohio town, that has known no Indians for a hundred years. One of the large maple trees that line the streets had died and workmen were digging out the stump. People had been passing that way all day, seeing no significance in the oval stone with one edge polished to a smooth bevel. So there it lay, in plain sight of the delighted collector. No doubt Crow Winger county farmers kick aside stones of as much value to collectors without realizing their significance.

Mr. Cowden brings this collection to us with no small outlay of trouble to himself, and Brainerd and the nearby communities should show appreciation of his kindness and generosity by visiting the museum in large numbers. It is open every afternoon this week, Saturday excepted, from 2 to 4:30 o'clock.

The Russian Worker

FREE labor may mean one thing in one country and something quite different in another, says Vincent Vovich writing in Current History. When a worker labors under the influence of a peculiar social philosophy his position may appear to be one of compulsion and enslavement to the workers of another country, so that what seems to be free labor to the Soviet leaders and their sympathizers may be regarded as forced labor in America and other capitalistic countries.

The Communists well know that free and democratic elections would remove most, if not all, of them from office. Freedom to choose the place of work, employer, wages, hours and working conditions would mean that few workers would select Communists for their industrial administrators.

Measures of virtual enslavement alone make the Russians work under the existing conditions. They know they are forced to work and to raise their hands at the meetings, but there is no way out.

They protest against the tyranny by disregard of discipline, by drunkenness, and by absents themselves from work. They cannot organize to overthrow the despots. Silence or punishment is the alternative. They prefer silence and the country progresses slowly.

The miseries and merciless exploitation of the down-trodden Russian workers are shadowed by fear and terror, while the desperate multitude is compelled to shout with grim smiles, "Long Live the Dictator."

A Good Memory

ACCORDING to Charles Harris, who gave a memory test at the Rotary club on Tuesday and at the Lions club the next evening, a good memory is something that can be acquired by exercising the mind just as one develops the muscles of the body in physical exercise.

Any person can train the mind so that he will be able to remember names, dates, figures, places and other necessary facts and things if properly instructed. The trouble with the business men and women today is that they depend on memoranda instead of using some of their neglected brain cells.

The lack of interest and the lack of concentration in not receiving correctly and properly first impressions makes it utterly impossible for the mind to register a permanent record.

Any graduate of Mr. Harris, who has followed instructions carefully, will then be immune to such things as forgetting to post his wife's letter, or forgetting to give the wife her regular allowance check and other things.

Death Takes No Holiday

DEATH takes no holiday. More people are killed in motor vehicle accidents on Sundays and holidays than on all other days. Saturday and Sunday, July 4th and 5th, are holidays and motor travel will be very heavy. Extra caution should be exercised by every driver.

Will accidents cause sorrow and suffering to follow, or will every driver of a motor vehicle take time to play safe and make these days ones of welfare and happiness for all?

SAINTS HAVE NARROW HALF GAME LEAD

NOW LORING IT IN FIRST POSITION OVER LOUISVILLE COLONELS

MILWAUKEE, IN THIRD PLACE, RIGHT AT HEELS OF THE LEADERS

(By United Press)

The St. Paul Saints maintained a narrow half-game lead today over the Louisville Colonels, champions last year, in the American Association. Milwaukee, in third place, remained right at the heels of the leaders. St. Paul experienced no trouble in winning from Kansas City, 11-2. The southerners got to two opposing hurlers for a total of 12 hits but were unable to bunt the blows for additional scores.

Milwaukee made 21 hits to defeat the fourth-place Minneapolis team, 11 to 3. Americus Polli, an old veteran, held the losers to one run up to the ninth inning, when he eased up and allowed two scores to cross the plate. Toledo won from Indianapolis, 11-3. Games today: Kansas City at St. Paul. Milwaukee at Minneapolis. Louisville at Columbus. Indianapolis at Toledo.

Young and wealthy Dave Ordway's plane crashes in the Florida groves of Joan Marbury. Joan, assisted by her cousin, Sally, has difficulty in running the plantation due to financial straits. Damage to the property following Joan's repulsion of the advances of Mueller, neighboring planter, adds to the hardships. Dave is held up and robbed by Mueller when he refuses Mueller's exorbitant demands for damage to his trees when Dave's plane swooped to a landing. That night, Mueller sets fire to the plane. A fight ensues and Joan rescues Dave from Mueller. Later, Dave's former fiancée, Barbara Holworthy, and his friends, Gerry Flemming and Talbot Henderson, visit him. Instant antagonism is aroused between Barbara and Joan. Mueller calls and orders Dave and the boys out of the country. Gerry identifies Mueller as Snatch Cazzoni, a hoodlegger. Barbara tries to make up with Dave. Sally resents being called a gold-digger by Barbara.

CHAPTER XVI.

SALLY turned away, staring stonily out into the moonlight.

Her rebellious face was very beautiful as she stood there and Dave was aware of a quickening of his pulses. Could it be possible, he wondered, that her intuition had pointed out the future correctly? No one knew better than he how one could drift along with the crowd, living from day to day and allowing the future to take care of itself. He knew, too, what magic there was in proximity. To avoid Barbara, it would be almost necessary to cut loose from all the friends with whom he had grown up and that would leave a gap in his life that would be difficult to fill.

"Listen, Sally," he said, "these few wonderful days with you and Joan have meant much more to me than you can possibly imagine."

Hard to Resist

She turned slowly to stare straight up into his eyes. There was intoxication in the nearness of her slender, vibrant body and of her full red lips. But as he looked down into the flawless oval of her face he seemed to see Joan's lips, firm and resolute.

"Sally," he whispered shakily, "we'd better go inside."

"Dave!" came Talbot's raucous voice. "You're holding up the procession."

Dave drew in his breath with a long sigh of relief. The spell was broken.

"Coming, Talbot," he called.

From the doorway came the wailing bleat of Gerry's mouth organ and the clear contralto of Joan's laughter. Sally had not moved. Dave placed his hand on her arm.

"We're going in now, Sally," he said firmly.

He could feel her arm tremble under the steady pressure of his fingers. Her two hands were clenched tightly on the porch rail as if they anchored her there, preventing her from drifting into the backwash of eventless days and nights which she had known before Dave had arrived and might know again after he had gone.

She looked hopelessly across the lawn toward the county road that led, on the one hand, to what had once been Cathay; on the other, to the lively cities on the Coast where there was dancing and music and laughter. She could smell the jungle, lush and dank, pregnant with the odors of dead things that it had smothered in its implacable embrace. It was out there, waiting for her to turn her back. Then it would sweep across the grove and the road and smother her, too. She could almost hear it breathe. She swayed a little closer to Dave. "I wish you weren't going, Dave," she whispered softly.

He turned his eyes away from her by sheer force of will and deliberately attuned his ears and his mind to the quavering notes of Gerry's mouth organ. She was too beautiful, too fascinating, for him to dare look at her any longer out here on the moon-drenched porch.

"We must go in," he repeated steadily. "They're waiting for me."

Deep Thoughts

"You go," she said in a muffled voice. "I want to stay here."

He hesitated for the space of a dozen heart-beats. Then he forced himself to walk into the house.

Joan, Talbot and Gerry were still sitting about the candle-lit table, the latter still blowing contentedly into his harmonica. Barbara, a fresh cigarette in her long red holder, was standing at the dining-room window, staring out into the black and silver shadows of the orange groves.

Talbot's quick blue eyes flickered from Dave's face to the doorway behind him. Joan's level gaze studied Dave's face thoughtfully. Gerry was oblivious to all but his mouth organ.

"It's about time you came in," said Talbot, reproachfully.

"Where's Miss Sally?"

"Out on the verandah," replied Dave.

Talbot rose hastily.

"Well, if we're going to pay a neighborly call on friend Muller," he said, "we'd better be tottering along. I'm going out for a breath of air while you gather yourself together."

With a purposeful stride he stalked to the verandah door, not meeting Dave's eye as he pushed by him. Those in the dining room could hear Sally's restless laugh as Talbot's heavy tread moved across the creaking boards of the porch.

"Are you ready to go, Gerry?" asked Dave.

Gerry removed the harmonica from his lips, polished it with his hand and reluctantly stowed it in the pocket of his coat.

"Sure," he nodded, staring owl-like at Barbara's silent figure.

"Babs, darling, is in a pet. I'd like to get hold of someone I can beat. If I don't, I'll probably beat her. Let's go."

If Barbara heard, she made no sign, but remained at the window, smoking with short, nervous puffs. Joan rose and turned to face Dave. "I know every inch of the way to Muller's landing place," she said, quietly. "Won't you let me go with you and show you the paths through the groves?"

"Stag party, my dear," announced Gerry. "Stay here. Keep home fires burning and all that rot."

"Gerry's right," smiled Dave. "There's no telling what kind of a jam we may get into out there. With him and Talbot lusting for blood, we'd better go it alone."

We'll be back in an hour if we're unsuccessful. If not, if I'm able to get away with one of Muller's planes, I'll fly it to St. Pete and borrow a car to return in the morning in case Muller becomes violent."

Cross-Currents

"Aren't you forgetting that the Restless leaves for Havana in the morning, Davey?" asked Barbara, turning away from the window.

"Gerry can get along without me for one cruise," said Dave, firmly.

Gerry blinked, confused by the cross-currents which he felt swirling around him. He felt into his pocket for his harmonica, then withdrew his hand hastily.

"Come on," he exploded, seizing Dave's arm. "Let's get out of here. Where's that fat goat, Talbot?"

"If you're not back within two hours," said Joan, calmly, "I'll know something has happened and I'll come after you."

"Hey, Talbot!" roared Gerry. "We're going!"

Barbara's back was again turned to the room. Gerry looked anxiously at her, then bent a precipitous retreat for the porch.

"I'll fly over the house if I manage to get a plane," said Dave, smiling into Joan's deep blue eyes. "Then you may look for me no later than tomorrow noon. Until then, good-bye. You've been very good to me."

He squeezed her hand in a tight, lingering grip, then turned abruptly away.

"S'long, Babs," he called. "See you here in an hour, or at St. Pete in the morning."

Barbara made no reply.

"Be quiet, now," whispered Dave. "Muller's landing field must be just ahead of us. I see a light over there between the trees."

Like three gray wraiths drifting through the orange grove, he, Talbot and Gerry crept on between the long, even lines of tree trunks. They heard the sound of approaching footsteps and dropped flat or their faces scarcely daring to breathe. The slither of feet through scrub and saw-grass grew louder and louder, passed within twenty feet of them and presently faded into nothing in the distance.

"Did you see that blighter?" whispered Talbot, excitedly. "I caught a glimpse of him between us and the light. He was carrying a rifle or a shotgun. Nice, friendly little spot, this!"

"Must have been one of the armed guards Joan was telling us about," replied Dave. "Come on, let's go."

"Wait a minute," objected Talbot. "Are there any snakes around here?"

"Both male and female," Dave assured him.

"Well, I've had a very nice time, but I'm going home now," stated Talbot definitely.

"Try it!" growled Gerry, succinctly. "You come with us!"

Muttering his protests, Talbot followed the other two as they crawled to the next line of trees. They found themselves at the edge of a wide clearing, at the other end of which was a barn-like hangar, brilliantly lighted.

"Look!" whispered Talbot. "There are four planes in there!"

SURVEY DROUGHT STRICKEN AREA OF N. D. AND MONTANA

RED CROSS OFFICIALS TAKE ACTION TO RELIEVE SUFFERING

Williston, N. D., July 1.—(U.P.)—Red Cross officials today made a survey of the drought stricken areas of western North Dakota and eastern Montana preparatory to relieving the suffering caused by crop failures and lack of water.

Meanwhile Governor George F. Shafer awaited an answer to a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and prepared to go to Washington to confer on what relief measures were necessary.

More than half of the average wheat crop included in the drought stricken area is considered actual loss. Farmers continued shipping cattle to markets as feed supplies dwindled. Thousands of head of livestock were being shipped to pastures in the eastern part of the state and will be returned later if sufficient rain to revive pastures is received.

A survey of federal officials, bankers and railroad men estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 families need help in some degree. Feed must be provided for 15 per cent of the cattle or they must be moved from the drought area.

Serious drought was also reported from Montana. Only two counties will produce a normal crop, it was said. The entire crop has been reduced to 10 counties. Losses to wheat were estimated at 75 million bushels in the northwest.

$500 REQUIRED TO FEED HUNGRY AT THE WEDDING

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—Philip Paulino doesn't think it was his fault if his wife's friends and relations were so hungry that $500 was required for his wedding banquet, he announced today.

Here is a list of the food which Paulino said was served at the banquet—and eaten by guests invited by Mrs. Paulino:

Weiners—98 pounds.
Biscuits—1,500.
Peanuts—100 pounds.
Dill pickles—750.
Beer—one barrel.

"Sure, my wife paid for the banquet," Paulino told Judge John J. Sullivan, "but wasn't it just as much her wedding as mine? And didn't her friends and relatives eat most of the food and drink all of the beer?"

Mrs. Paulino has sued for divorce and requested return of the $500 spent on the food. Judge Sullivan granted her $5 a week temporary alimony and took the matter of the banquet funds under consideration.

FRANK J. CLEMANS, PROHIBITION LEADER, DIES IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, July 1.—(U.P.)—Frank J. Clemans, 69, prohibition leader, died yesterday after four years of illness.

Clemans was a prominent figure in prohibition circles both before the enactment of the eighteenth amendment and subsequently and also took part in several municipal reform movements.

Clemans was born in Faribault, Minn., Dec. 20, 1861 and was employed in railroad and insurance work here. During campaigns for prohibition he managed the appearance of numerous dry movement speakers, organized meetings of protest and fought saloons.

Clemans' active fight against liquor resulted in several physical encounters and he habitually carried a steel cane for protection.

Married in 1883 to Minnie A. Squiers he was left a widower in 1922 when Mrs. Clemans died. Surviving are a son Harry G. St. Paul and a brother, Colonel Ezra C. Clemans, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Owatonna.

SURVEY DROUGHT STRICKEN AREA OF N. D. AND MONTANA

RED CROSS OFFICIALS TAKE ACTION TO RELIEVE SUFFERING

Williston, N. D., July 1.—(U.P.)—Red Cross officials today made a survey of the drought stricken areas of western North Dakota and eastern Montana preparatory to relieving the suffering caused by crop failures and lack of water.

Meanwhile Governor George F. Shafer awaited an answer to a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and prepared to go to Washington to confer on what relief measures were necessary.

More than half of the average wheat crop included in the drought stricken area is considered actual loss. Farmers continued shipping cattle to markets as feed supplies dwindled. Thousands of head of livestock were being shipped to pastures in the eastern part of the state and will be returned later if sufficient rain to revive pastures is received.

A survey of federal officials, bankers and railroad men estimated that between 5,000 and 6,000 families need help in some degree. Feed must be provided for 15 per cent of the cattle or they must be moved from the drought area.

Serious drought was also reported from Montana. Only two counties will produce a normal crop, it was said. The entire crop has been reduced to 10 counties. Losses to wheat were estimated at 75 million bushels in the northwest.

$500 REQUIRED TO FEED HUNGRY AT THE WEDDING

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—Philip Paulino doesn't think it was his fault if his wife's friends and relations were so hungry that $500 was required for his wedding banquet, he announced today.

Here is a list of the food which Paulino said was served at the banquet—and eaten by guests invited by Mrs. Paulino:

Weiners—98 pounds.
Biscuits—1,500.
Peanuts—100 pounds.
Dill pickles—750.
Beer—one barrel.

"Sure, my wife paid for the banquet," Paulino told Judge John J. Sullivan, "but wasn't it just as much her wedding as mine? And didn't her friends and relatives eat most of the food and drink all of the beer?"

Mrs. Paulino has sued for divorce and requested return of the $500 spent on the food. Judge Sullivan granted her $5 a week temporary alimony and took the matter of the banquet funds under consideration.

FRANK J. CLEMANS, PROHIBITION LEADER, DIES IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, July 1.—(U.P.)—Frank J. Clemans, 69, prohibition leader, died yesterday after four years of illness.

Clemans was a prominent figure in prohibition circles both before the enactment of the eighteenth amendment and subsequently and also took part in several municipal reform movements.

Clemans was born in Fairbault, Minn., Dec. 20, 1861 and was employed in railroad and insurance work here. During campaigns for prohibition he managed the appearance of numerous dry movement speakers, organized meetings of protest and fought saloons.

Clemans' active fight against liquor resulted in several physical encounters and he habitually carried a steel cane for protection.

Married in 1883 to Minnie A. Squiers he was left a widower in 1922 when Mrs. Clemans died. Surviving are a son Harry G. St. Paul and a brother, Colonel Ezra C. Clemans, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Owatonna.

FOURTH OF JULY HANDICAP MEET AT BREEZY POINT

TROPHIES AWARDED TO THE
LOW NET AND LOW GROSS
WINNERS

AMONG EARLY ENTRIES ARE
GOV. AND MRS. OLSON, MR.
AND MRS. C. COLEMAN

Faulty putting and short drives can no longer be attributed to the much-abused "balloon ball" of the United States Golf Association. At least, not in the case of the Minnesota golfers who will participate in the July 4th handicap meet at Breezy Point Lodge on July 4th and 5th. Unlike many other tournaments which have allowed the entrants the option of either ball, this Independence meet will require all contestants to play with the smaller size golf ball which was last fall outlawed by the governing heads of the golfing world. The new size ball which has so generally displeased the golfers of America will be barred from the meet.

The Breezy Point "old ball" tournament will be an eighteen-hole affair open to both men and women. Trophies will be awarded to the low net and low gross winners in both the men's and women's divisions.

Among the early entries for the Independence meet are Governor and Mrs. Floyd B. Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart, Gil Carmichael, Jake Wetherby, all of the Minneapolis Golf Club; Mr. and Mrs. Oren Safford and Lawrence Carpenter of Minnetonka Club; and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Fawcett of Interlachen.

The seventh annual Ten Thousand Lakes Tournament which has been staged on July 4th in previous years, is scheduled this year for August 28, 29 and 30. Lester Bolstad, present title holder and recent runner-up in the Trans-Mississippi event, has already signified his intentions to again defend his title against the field of Northwest golfers.

Several acres of timber have been cleared to make room for the new nine holes to be added to the Breezy Point Golf course. The new course which is laid out mostly around Big Pelican lake, will be of championship length when completed and will measure 6,400 yards.

A new watering system has just been installed for the course with an immense storage tank holding 70,000 gallons of water. Herbert Crumney of the Los Angeles Athletic Club is again acting as club professional for the Breezy Point course.

FORMAL OPENING OF INTERSTATE BRIDGE OVER ST. CROIX RIVER

Stillwater, Minn., July 1.—(UP)—Formal opening of new interstate bridge over the St. Croix river today attracted several thousand spectators to the ceremonies.

Governor Floyd B. Olson was scheduled to make the principal address and other state officials are expected to take part in the dedicatory exercises. Approximately 100 members of the St. Paul Association of Commerce and the St. Paul Automobile Club will head a motorcade of automobiles to the ceremonies.

Another feature of the program at the bridge dedication will be the arrival of Captain Gerhard Folgero, master of the 60-foot Viking ship the "Raold Amundsen," from St. Paul. After the ceremonies here the Raold Amundsen will take part in the water pageant and then proceed to Davenport, Ia., where the start back across the ocean will be made.

Folgero will represent Norwegians at the ceremonies.

ATHLETICS AND CARDS BUILDING UP THEIR MARGINS

ASSUMING LEADERSHIP IN RESPECTIVE MAJOR LEAGUE
PENNANT RACES

GEORGE EARNSHAW ALLOWS 12
HITS, BUT MANAGES TO WIN
13TH VICTORY OF YEAR

By LEO H. PETERSEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 1.—The world champion Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals once more are building up comfortable margins of leadership in the 1931 major league pennant races.

The Athletics and Cardinals, whose pace-setting positions in the American and National Leagues, respectively, were threatened only a few days ago by Washington and New York, today enjoyed a three and one half game advantage over the second place clubs.

That lead means that both Philadelphia and St. Louis are sure of holding the leadership when July 4 rolls around. And it's an old saying in baseball, even though it doesn't always work out, that the team holding the lead on July 4 goes through to win the pennant. That old tradition held true as far as the Athletics were concerned last year but the Cardinals appeared to be hopelessly out of the running in the National League on Independence Day in 1930.

Both teams assured themselves of leading their respective circuits at least until the games of July 4 are played yesterday, the Athletics by defeating Cleveland 11 to 7, and the Cardinals by beating out New York 11 to 10.

George Earnshaw, although he allowed 12 hits, had little trouble in registering his 13th victory of the season as his mates pounded Brown and Larson hard.

In the other American League games St. Louis shut out Washington, 7 to 0, the Detroit Tigers nosed out New York 8 to 7, and Boston defeated Chicago 7 to 1.

Hornesby hit two home runs as Chicago Cubs swamped Philadelphia 14 to 3. The Cincinnati Reds defeated Brooklyn 4 to 3, while Boston whipped Pittsburgh, 5 to 1.

and Force Are Guests of Rotarians

Charles Harris, of New York, memory expert, gave a demonstration of his memory tests at the Rotary club yesterday. In the lobby of the hotel, before the meeting, he was casually introduced or had pointed out to him the 40 members of the club and their guests.

Mr. Harris started his demonstration by identifying each individual and giving proper name and in some cases telephone numbers and car number. It was a noticeable fact that only one Rotarian present remembered his car number.

Following that, he turned his back to the group and described without an error the seating plan during the dinner and told accurately the names of the members, who were obliged to leave early. He then explained that his record for remembering names and faces at a Service club dinner was 285, set a few months ago in New York.

"A business man today writes his engagements for dinner, business calls or other matters on a slip of paper and tucks it into his pocket or puts it on a spindle. Sometimes the paper is lost and the engagements are forgotten," the speaker said before giving a demonstration of a mental "filing cabinet."

Mr. Harris went to 15 men of the Rotary club, made assignments and engagements and then correctly reeled off the entire list without a break.
Each man was numbered. He then asked the members to call out any of the numbers and without an error he was able to repeat each of the 15 engagements at random.

Mr. Harris will give a demonstration at the Lions club this evening.

Guests of the club who were particularly interested in the memory tests and demonstrations were Chief of Police Thomas Templeton and his force including Captain Charles Varner and Patrolmen Erick Graff and H.
B. Sande. Chief Templeton spoke briefly and thanked the club for the courtesy shown in inviting them to the luncheon and program.

FALLON IS FETED ON RETIREMENT

Respects Paid to Postal Employee in Service 24 Years and Eight Months

Monday evening, the employees of the local post office gave a surprise party for George W. Fallon who is retiring after 24 years and 8 months of postal service to the Brainerd department.

The party was given at the Robert Falconer cottage at South Long Lake
"Mid-Pines."

During all these years, Mr. Fallon has served on Rural Route No. 2. During the first years, he used a horse and buggy to cover his route, and the last 10 years has used a car. He covered 28 miles daily, a total of approximately 7,696 miles, serving an average of 100 patrons a day.

Arrangements for the party had been carefully planned, and Mr. Fallon was completely surprised. He had been asked early in the afternoon by Mr. Falconer to come out fishing, and when they returned from the fishing trip, the cars were driving in to the cottage. Those present were Postmaster Carl Adams, Assistant Postmaster Wm. Spencer and the entire personnel and their families, numbering about 50 in all.

An elaborate picnic luncheon was held. The evening was spent in outdoor sports, swimming, boating, etc.

Mr. Fallon was presented with a beautiful rocking chair from his fellow employees, J. J. Nolan making the presentation. Mr. Fallon was well liked by those he worked with as well as the people he had served all these years, all holding him in high esteem.

The committee in charge of the arrangements were Robert Falconer,

David Goodnature, Albert Englund, Albert R. Cass, Stanley Durham and Roy Thon.
Mr. Fallon and family reside at 1102
South Tenth street.

HOURLASS IS SYMBOL OF MODERN ROASTING METHOD

Accuracy Is Assured in Controlled Roasting — Hills Bros. Patented Process
for Roasting Coffee

Better than anything else, an hour-glass symbolizes the exactness of Hills Bros.' patented, Controlled Roasting process. For the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . .
a little at a time . . . so the wonderful, unvarying flavor of Hills Bros.
Coffee is produced by this patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time.

This is very different from ordinary, bulk-roasting methods. The results are very different too. You can judge them yourself, if you compare Hills Bros. with other coffees.

Hills Bros. has a finer, uniform flavor. Roasting it a little at a time makes this possible. For every berry receives the right amount of heat. None is underdone, none is overdone. The same delightful flavor is assured in every pound. Bulk-roasted coffee can't guarantee these things. No wonder Hills Bros. Coffee has and holds so many friends!

Hills Bros. Coffee comes in vacuum cans that keep it fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Even ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

FRANK SHIPKA IS STRICKEN BY HEAT

High Temperature Induces Heart Attack Fatality of Resort
Owner at Mission

LIVED THERE 17 YEARS

Was Popular With Sportsmen, Mill
City Firemen, Police Patronized
Resort Yearly

Frank Shipka, 62, who has directed hundreds of visiting sportsmen to good fishing and hunting places in the Mission Lake area, making his livelihood through nature, was the victim of a heart attack brought on by the heat late Tuesday afternoon.

His body was found at 6:30 p. m.
lying on a cot in the main cabin of his summer resort at the Mission Lake Narrows where he had lived the past 17 years.

Ferdinand Straka, Brainerd youth, who has been helping the owner in boating duties on the lake the past three weeks came upon the body. He had last seen Shipka at 5:30 p. m.
when the latter told him he wanted to lie down for a rest.

Shipka was widely known throughout the state by sportsmen, particularly many Minneapolis policemen and firemen who voted him a good host and came yearly on fishing and hunting trips.

Before living in Center township, Shipka resided at Milroy and Sleepy-eye, Minn., and at Cleveland where he was born.

The outdoorsman bought his resort,
44 acres, from Dr. J. A. Thabes, Sr., several years ago.

Surviving is one son, Alfred of Cleveland, three brothers, Charles and Edward of Center township and William of Milroy, also two sisters, Mrs.

Frank Dobesh, Gregory, S. D., and Mrs. David Nye of Mount Dora, New Mexico.

Funeral rites have been tentatively set for Saturday.

PRICES MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

TRADING CONTINUES ON SMALL SCALE ON STOCK EX- CHANGE

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, July 1.—Prices moved in a narrow rut at the opening on the stock exchange today and trading continued on a small scale. Most exchanges were less than a half point in scope with advance declines about evenly distributed.

Markets abroad opened weak but firmed up toward the close. Trading on the Paris Bourse was particularly active near the end of the session with oil and rubber shares in demand as traders appeared convinced a way would be found to break the deadlock on the Hoover proposal.

Domestic news was mixed. Steel production showed a decline but sentiment in the industry was showing further improvement. Car loadings were up about 7,000 cars from the previous reporting week.

Despite the improvement in sentiment in the steel industry, traders sold U. S. steel heavily after the opening. The stock was down a point at 99 3/4 on the first sale and then it broke to 99.

PRICES MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

TRADING CONTINUES ON SMALL SCALE ON STOCK EX- CHANGE

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, July 1.—Prices moved in a narrow rut at the opening on the stock exchange today and trading continued on a small scale. Most exchanges were less than a half point in scope with advance declines about evenly distributed.

Markets abroad opened weak but firmed up toward the close. Trading on the Paris Bourse was particularly active near the end of the session with oil and rubber shares in demand as traders appeared convinced a way would be found to break the deadlock on the Hoover proposal.

Domestic news was mixed. Steel production showed a decline but sentiment in the industry was showing further improvement. Car loadings were up about 7,000 cars from the previous reporting week.

Despite the improvement in sentiment in the steel industry, traders sold U. S. steel heavily after the opening. The stock was down a point at 99 3/4 on the first sale and then it broke to 99.
